Review

"Throughout the past few decades, there have been an increasing number of English-language studies on various aspects of Turkey's unresolved Kurdish question. However, Akin Unver's work is different in the sense that it provides a comprehensive, comparative, and rich analysis of the discursive construction of the Kurdish question within three legislatures, namely the Grand National Assembly of Turkey (GNAT), the American Congress, and the European Parliament. Unver's focus on these three legislative organs seems well-justified because it allows discourse analyses of different actors both from the government and the opposition."
