Review

This book flows very nicely. It is easy to read but causes one to stop and reevaluate life and every day choices. I appreciated the use of Dr. Anderson's personal experiences. The book is a great reminder of who we need to be, not just what we need to do, if we want to end up in celestial glory. --Denna

This book does not contain fluff. It offers a down to earth guide of how to deal with real world, real family, real personal challenges while walking the road toward the celestial. If you're a parent fighting to hold the line with your children in this confusing world, you'll especially appreciate its affirmation and support of your goals. Real stories and how-to scenarios from Dr. Anderson's clinical practice and life experiences add credibility and interest. When I've read excerpts to friends, they invariably want to know where to get the book. Highly recommended. --Joan E.

This is an incredible work! So practical and applicable. Wow! It gave voice to many principles in the gospel that I knew were true, but didn't know how to articulate them. It builds and enriches anyone's perspective on the gospel regardless of background. I have loaned my copy to several friends and all found it insightful. Some of my friends are adult converts (of many years) and they particularly enjoyed the explanations and perspective it gave them. Also it helps see beyond some of the elements of Mormon culture and how the gospel really is for everyone regardless of background. For me it has also helped me discover areas that I want to be better at and the tools to recognize priorities of what to work on within my life. Dr. Anderson does a fabulous job of mixing examples from life and her experience as a clinical therapist that illustrate perfectly gospel principles. It is an enjoyable read because you are constantly recognizing how so many principles truly do apply to our lives. This book will touch your life and give you a deeper appreciation for this experience we are all going through and the ability to truly choose Glory! --Julie
